

Contents

0. Introduction	11
1. Spartan treaties of the archaic period: an analysis of the sources	21
1.1. The Spartan-Aitolian treaty	21
1.2. The Spartan-Tegean treaty	45
1.3. Herodotus on the beginnings of the Spartan symmarchy	61
1.3.1. Archaic Spartan alliances and the testimony of Herodotus	61
1.3.2. Herodotus, Sparta, and Tegea: memory or creation?	75
2. Determinants of the rise of the Spartan symmarchy	87
2.1. The Helot threat: the symmarchy and the internal stability of the Spartan State	87
2.2. ‘Hegemony in the Peloponnese’: Argos, Sparta, and the Spartan symmarchy	102
2.3. Sparta and Greek tyrants: between anti-tyrannical ideology and the politics of friendship	115
2.4. Royal power and Spartan alliances: the case of Kleomenes	150
3. The shape of the Spartan symmarchy in the fifth century BCE	160
3.1. The assemblies of Spartan allies	160
3.1.1. Th.5.30 and the “constitutional” character of assemblies of Spartan allies	161
3.1.2. The assemblies of Spartan allies until the outbreak of the Peloponnesian War	168
3.1.2.1. The assembly of 504	168
3.1.2.2. The assemblies of 440 and 432	175
3.2. The Spartan symmarchy and the Hellenic League	190
3.3. Wars of Sparta and the wars of its allies	199
4. The Peloponnese and the Peloponnesians: from geography to politics ..	212
5. Conclusion	238
Appendix	245
Bibliography	246
Index	261
Index locorum – Literary Text	271
Index locorum – Inscriptions & Source collections	283